Occupied the Police Cells Last Week for Various Offenses.

OVER 200 PRISONERS

The Average Starts Off Well This Week-All Sorts of Prisoners on Trial Today.

The prison cells of the Police Court were ecupied last week by 260 prisoners, there eing 75 locked up on Monday morning. the number of females last week was not so large as it had been during the preceding week, but this morning's prisoners showed a material increase in prisoners of oth sexes, there being 67 males and 21 females who answered roll call. While a large majority of the prisoners were col-ored there was a good sprinkling of white nong both males and females. Mary Anderson and Mary Ernest were first called in Judge Taylor's court. The former was charged under the alias Mary from there. Not long ago we took her out of a stable at 3 o'clock in the morning."

"Then she has no home?"

"She has a husband in Chicago," replied the officer, "but she has been keeping company with another man."

A citizen who appeared as a witness complained that the woman had broken up his family. up his family.
"I ain't no vag," was the only statement the woman had to make, and the judge gave her two months.

Mary Ernest was arrested in the same orderly conduct and went down for fifteen days.

Richard Copeland, an aged man from Georgetown, was next in line.

"Are you guilty or not guilty?" he was asked after a charge of disorderly conduct had been read to him.

"I don't know nothin' about it," was his response. "It's the first time I was ever arrested and I was so drunk that I can't tell what happened."

"This man went in a coffee house at Bridge and High streets Saturday night," said Policeman Howard. "He had some trouble with the man in there because he refused to pay for what he got and the clerk threw him out. He refused to leave there and I had to arrest him."

"Honest, judge, I don't remember," said the prisoner. "Won't you let me go this time?"

An All Round Tramp.

John, who is a middle-aged man, had been working in Alexandria and yesterday morning he started to tramp to Baltimore. When he reached Garfield Park he thought he was in the country and so stretched out on the grass and soon fell asleep.

John was willing and anxious to tramp on in the direction of Baltimore, but the judge detained him for two weeks.

Mary Douglass was arrested on 10th attract for respectively. Mary Douglass was arrested on 10th street for vagrancy and she was given two weeks' vacation.

Ida Middleton, a colored woman from Southeast Washington, who is an old offender, was arraigned on two charges. She was well dressed, but the officers accused her of being a vagrant.

"She's the worst of all the vagrants in that section." said the officer in the case, and he told of her disorderly conduct at her house.

"Are you married to the man with whom ou live?" the court asked her. "No, sir," was her response.

"Ninety days."
Ida threw up her hands, screamed at the top of her voice and fell on the floor as though she had fainted.
"She's only putting on," said Balliff Kendig, and back she went.
